YURI TSUZUKI

Yuri Tsuzuki is a Japanese artist embracing two very different worlds: the East and the West. Her work acknowledges and reveals the many complexities, sensitivities and beauties inherent in every culture. "I want my work to be like the wind – with no boundaries, gentle yet strong, intangible yet omnipresent. Each of us has a personal vision, our very own mandala. My paintings are a reflection: a prism of reflected thoughts through which I observe the world around me. Through my work, I only wish to share with others, the view through my mind's eye." ●

Yuri is a graduate of Princeton University and has a Masters degree from Columbia University. Her art has been reviewed in The New York Times and in Town and Country Magazine. ●

We are happy to introduce two works from her Invisible Cities, series, which refers to the great traveler, Marco Polo. Ryoanji and Flowering Blues depict the simplicity in Japanese gardens, while Yours to Give alludes to the process of artistic creation. ●
